

Photo

Award winning photojournalist returns to deliver lecture

National award-winning fine art photojournalist Kevin Pieper will return to A-State March 10-11 for the Dr. Joel Gambill Distinguished Speaker Series.

Pieper, who was once the Herald photo editor, graduated from A-State in 1994 and was one of Dr. Gambill's star journalism students. He earned a bachelor of science degree in journalism and a bachelor of science degree in zoology.

"I had Dr. Gambill for several classes and enjoyed the time I spent with him," Pieper said. "I credit my time at ASU for any small modicum of success that I have enjoyed."

Pieper, a biologist, has more

"I credit my time at ASU for any small modicum of success that I have enjoyed."
- Pieper

than 25 years of experience combining his love of the natural world with his love for people, "exploring and illuminating the connections humans and all life on Earth share." He adds, "One planet. One love!" Copies of his book, "Connecting With Nature: Portraits and Essays on Nature and Man," will be on sale. He produces other editorial content on subjects ranging from adventure, personality profiles and human-interest pieces to trending topics. He is well-versed in multimedia content creation and the delivery of that content in the digital universe.

At the same time, Pieper has had some of his work published in Reader's Digest, several National Geographic publications, Mother Earth News, the New York Times and USA Today.

Pieper lives in north-central Arkansas, in the heart of the Ozarks. You can find him at pieperphoto.com.

