

Delta National Small Prints Exhibition

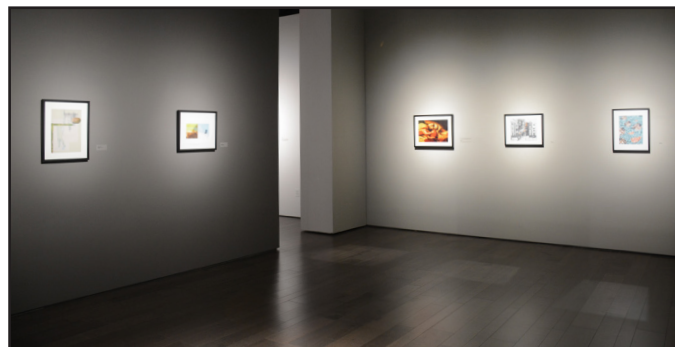

Winner of the Juror Merit Award, Alberto Balletti's "Stunt Ration-Chiara." Linda Whitney's piece, "Napesis."

The Delta National Small Prints Exhibition is now available for viewing at the Bradbury Art Museum. The exhibit is a collection of digital prints, watercolor pieces, and 3D lenticular media.

A-State students walking around the gallery, looking at the collection.

The exhibit consists of 50 small prints created by over 35 different artists.

The Delta National Small Prints Exhibition will be available until Feb. 17. The museum is free and open for public viewing Tuesday to Saturday, noon to 5p.m.

Hillary Brooks, Registrar/Curator for the museum next to her favorite piece, "Aunt Marie," a collagraph by Luca Cruzat.

Winner of the Chancellor's Purchase Award, Carol Hayman's photo intaglio piece, "Bubble Heads."

"Fading Poppies 2," a watercolor print by Johntimothy Pizzuto, hangs next to "Conversation Pit 1" by Mary Ann Strandell, a relief print on 3D lenticular media.

From left to right, Autumn Harris, a senior graphic design major from Nashville, Cordarius Brown, a senior graphic design major from Wynne, Tamela Quinn, a sophomore elementary education major from Dyersburg, TN, and Sommer Morton, a senior psychology major from Jonesboro, standing in front of prints included in the exhibition.