

Photo

9/11 Remembered at the A-State Football Game

Small American flags on the grass surrounding the Arkansas State University Red Wolf symbol to symbolize the remembrance of the events on 9/11.

The Red Wolves on the line of scrimmage, ready for a play.

An enthusiastic fan in the student section flying an A-State flag.

Cheerleaders doing a stunt to enliven the student section.

Maddy Nigut, the "Diamond of the Natural State," twirling the paton.

An A-State Red Wolf positioned to run on the line of scrimmage.

The Mayor of Jonesboro, Herald Copenhaver (right), an A-State alum, singing The National Anthem.

American flags decorating the grass by the student section in memoriam of Sept. 11.

The Red Wolves making their game entrance with smoke machines and excited fans.

The fans enjoying the A-State Red Wolves football game at Centennial Bank Stadium, Saturday. The nail-biting game ended in a 50-55 loss against the Memphis Tigers. In remembrance of 9/11, members of the crowd involved in the armed forces were asked to stand and were met with loud applause. For more information on the game, see the Sports page article on 2B

Photos by: Hannah Risker | Photo Editor

The Spirit Squad leading cheers.

The drum major leading the "Sound of the Natural State."

The Sound of the Natural State band playing "Fanfare for the Common Man," "Amazing Grace" and "America the Beautiful" at the halftime show.