

Celebrating Hispanic Heritage Month With a Latin Food Festival

Students looking at a pamphlet for Hermanidad de Sigma Iota Alpha Incorporada. The Multicultural Center and Hermanidad de Sigma Iota Alpha Incorporada hosted a Latin Food Festival to celebrate Hispanic Heritage Month. The event took place in Centennial Hall in the Reng Student Union Thursday night.

Students visiting the Study Abroad booth at the festival. Each booth had a pamphlet and a representative to aid with student questions.

Students conversing with representatives of the Study Abroad program.

Students filling their plates with traditional Latin foods.

This is the first annual Latin Food Festival, created to introduce people to Hispanic culture through food.

The Food Festival is the first of many events celebrating Hispanic Heritage Month. The next event is the Hispanic Heritage Museum night on Thursday, Sept. 23 at 6 p.m. in Centennial Hall.

The decorated tables at the Latin Food Festival in Centennial Hall, Thursday night.

Students enjoying the food, lemonade, and music at the Latin Food Festival during Hispanic Heritage Month.

The food provided at the Latin Food Festival.

Students grabbing tacos, empanadas, and more.