

Arkansas State University Events for Students

1. Tea being made and ready to serve.

2. Students getting a sample of tea.

3. The International Programs Building hosted a "Cultural Demo: Tea Day" consisting of demonstrating the traditions and culture involved in the creation of tea from around the world, Sept. 28.

4. Students gathered at the "Traditional Tea Ceremony" at the International Programs Building.

5. Students were able to give demonstrations on how their tea was made, the importance and history of tea in the culture they were representing, and hand out samples to attendees.

6. Matilyn Smith carrying mums for customers. The proceeds go to the A-State School of Horticulture.

7. Addison Nobles selecting mums for customers at the annual Horticulture mum sale held Sept. 30.

8. Abby Case, a student at A-State, visiting the annual mums sale at the College of Agriculture greenhouse.

9 Anne Ross with a collection of mums at the Horticulture mums sale at A-State.

10. From left to right, Tiwon Williamson, a freshman business major, with Jadacee Glover, a sophomore exercise major, and Larry Turner, a junior biology major.

11. Individuals entering the event.

12. The attendees listening to the panel after dinner.

13. Nora Bouzihay, Multicultural Affairs Community Activist speaking on the panel.

14. The A-State Career Services and Multicultural Affairs members hosted a dinner and panel discussion at Centennial Hall, Sept. 30. The event was created to provide a space for diverse and underrepresented students to network with peers and professionals.

Photos 1-5 by My Huynh | Staff Photographer,
Photos 6-9 by Emma Goad | Special to the Herald,
Photos 10-14 by Jessica McMillan | Staff Photographer