

Photo

Arts at A-State

1. Terra cotta clay sculpture, "When Searching for El Dorado," from 2019.

2. One of Chalmers' sculptures, "Articles of Longing Earthenware," from 2019.

3. Bradbury Art Museum Curator, Madeline McMahan shows the chalk pastel artworks on display.

4. Miah Wood, a sophomore art education major from Brookland using chalk pastel on her artwork.

5. A student looking at the new art exhibit in the Fine Arts Center gallery. The gallery features work by Pattie Chalmers. The artwork above is "These days I think of you," made from terra cotta and mixed media from 2018.

6. "Things Fall Away," a porcelain and mixed media sculpture from this year.

7. Community members and A-State students learn chalk pastel techniques from Madeline McMahan, the Bradbury Art Museum Curator.

8. A detail shot of "Articles of Longing Earthenware."